

Admission

Georgetown University admits qualified students of any age, gender, race, religion, color, national and ethnic origin to all rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the school. It does not discriminate on the basis of age, gender, sexual orientation, race, religion, handicap, color, national or ethnic origin in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other school administered programs. Applicants for admission are measured on two scales: academic and personal.

Waiver of Access

In 1974, Congress enacted a law designed to provide access for students to materials contained in their official records. If you are accepted for admission and enrolled as a student at Georgetown University, you will have the right to inspect documents in your official file.

The importance of candor in the college admissions process was recognized in the formulation of this law. It is possible, therefore, to provide a waiver of access to certain documents that contain subjective evaluations important in a competitive admissions process. Since it has been our experience that confidential recommendations are frequently more candid than non-confidential recommendations, we have placed waiver statements on several documents contained in this package so that you may indicate your intentions. In completing these forms, please be certain to select one of the options provided before presenting the document to your dean or professor.

Housing

On-campus housing availability is limited to traditional four-year undergraduate students. Like graduate students, Accelerated Second Degree BSN students are not eligible for on-campus housing. However, upon acceptance to a degree program, students will be eligible for assistance in seeking off-campus housing through the University's off-campus housing office.

Financial Aid

Georgetown University practices "need-blind" admissions; an applicant's ability to meet college costs is not a criterion for admission. The University is committed to this policy because it ensures access to a Georgetown education for all qualified candidates. Georgetown helps applicants and their families plan how to allocate existing family resources and use financial aid and supplemental financing plans to cover their higher education costs.

How to Apply for Financial Aid

To obtain more detailed information about financing educational costs at Georgetown and applying for assistance, visit the Georgetown University Undergraduate Student Financial Services website at <http://finaid.georgetown.edu/>.

Georgetown University admits qualified students of any age, sex, sexual orientation, race, color, religion, and national and ethnic origin to all rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the school. It does not discriminate on the basis of age, sex, sexual orientation, race, handicap, color, religion, or national and ethnic origin in administration of its educational policies, admission policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other school-administered programs. Inquiries regarding Affirmative Action-Equal Opportunity may be addressed to Affirmative Action Programs, 37th and O Streets, N.W., Room M-36 Darnall Hall, Georgetown University, Washington, DC 20057, 202) 687-4798. Georgetown University is also an Affirmative Action-Equal Opportunity employer. All students under age 26 attending school in the District of Columbia are required by D.C. Law 3-20 to present evidence of immunization against the following diseases: poliomyelitis, measles, rubella (German measles), diphtheria, mumps, and tetanus.